~ Clover Leaves ~

St. Patrick's Day is just around the corner, and with green being the theme color it's a perfect time to pay tribute to our favorite thneed salesman, particularly if he's in that snazzy green suit of his! Those of you of age might want to celebrate with a nice bottle of marshmallow vodka, whereas you younger folks could pop open the apple cider. Try 'em both with pancakes!

In this issue of The Unless Press, we take a gander at four ask blogs, give an update on the Zombie AU, and more!! •

Adventure Time

"Choose Your Own Adventure" games have been going on for quite a few years now, but they're still just as fun as when they first started. Now there's an online version of the game to be found in the Once-ler fandom as well! Go check it out here:

Tea for Three?

Try over 3,000! Gentleman Once-ler, sometimes fondly referred to as "Mister Once-ler", now has over 3,200 friends/followers! That's quite a number, but which of us is surprised? Gent has always been such a generous, kind, and caring fellow, and it goes without saying that he deserves all the followers he gets. Congratulations & much love to one of our favorite ask blogs!!

Fun and Games

If there's any extra tension in Camp Entre, it's mostly internal, but despite the occasional set back some in the group still manage to have a little fun. Ted and Beanpole recently explored some of the game rooms. They uncovered several board games, and even a zombie card game. They also spotted a "mutant"-looking bird, whom they unsuccessfully tried to catch. Rocky and Entre, meanwhile, were saved from a hoard of infected by Swag, and Beanpole's cough has been getting worse. Cowboy advised Beanpole to speak to Audrey about his cough, and let's hope he heeds the warning, for if Entre is any indication... that cough can't be tame.

Gore Galore

Have a taste for the gorey and gruesome? Skully and Adori are challenging one another to top the charts. If you've got the guts, go check out their artwork here:

~ Bloggity Blogs ~

Ask blogs are one of the many beating hearts that keep this fandom alive. Today we take a look into just a few of those ask blogs that make this community that more much interesting to be in.

Sim-ler

Sim-ler is one of the newest ask blogs to pop up in the fandom. Considering the popularity of the Sims games, as well as the numerous situations you can put the characters in, it's a wonder this blog didn't pop up sooner! With hilarious responses and charming artwork, this Once-ler is definitely worth a look!

Dyr-ler

Do you remember the Once-ler? You should, and you should certainly check out this fellow! He is a recreation of the Once-ler that we all know and love in the 2012 film. This is a look into what the Once-ler's life during his time as a tycoon might have been like.

The fandom is deep in online newsletters already, but what if it had its own magazine…?

The Unless Press, being an online news blog for the fandom, has already made waves and gathered a reputation for itself as an informative resource, but what if the fandom -- or, more specifically, the universe of Once-ler ask blogs -- had their own magazine, too??

Such an ambitious project may never come to light, but it's certainly fun to think about! Fandom member Moloosh, who is well-known for creating such memorable graphic designs as the Truffula Flu covers, very recently came up with a mock-up cover for a magazine that you see here. It gives us a humorous taste into what the world of the ask blogs might be like if they had a magazine to rely on for news. No doubt us Once-lings would find it highly interesting as well, if it were real!

Who's to say that such a thing will only go so far as a cover, however? Many propositions in this fandom, be them private or public, have come to fruition. The Masterpost Blog was once just a thought; all of the AUs in the fandom were born of innocent jokes and discussions with friends; talk of the Truffula Flu story becoming a real comic isn't too far off from the truth; and this paper that you're reading was an idea I thought would go nowhere at the time. It goes without saying that this fandom is creative. •

Speak for the fans!!

Do you have any suggestions on how to improve the look, operation, and/or construction of The Unless Press? Want to let us know about something in the paper you dislike? Or maybe you love the newsletter and simply want to express your appreciation? Send on a note to us! Your comment may be published!

Let it grow!!
